

at Eppingham Towers, his Babylon estate. Miss "Cameron" was always in the background. She seldom, if ever, sat down at dinner with his guests.

The financier's body was taken to his boyhood home in Chatham for interment. Miss "Cameron," although known to the relatives in Chatham, was not then considered to hold a position in the Hawley household of any importance.

It wasn't until the news that the railroad man had died without leaving a will, that any attention was given to his family affairs. Then it was claimed that a woman figured in his life, and that she was in a position to dictate to the other members of the Hawley family.

Inquiries were made regarding Mr. Hawley's heirs, and it was found that Frederick Crandell, who had been discarded by Hawley because the financier considered he had married below his station, would inherit an equal amount with the two other heirs-at-law, William P. Hawley, a younger brother of the railroad man, and Walter S. Crandell. Fred Crandell's brother, should it be eventually proven that the Hawley had died intestate, Public interest in the mystery of the missing will, as it was called, took a decided leap.

Neither the heirs nor Robert H. Davis, who for years had been Mr. Hawley's partner, would give any information concerning the affairs of the late railroad king. Former lawyers of Hawley declared they knew nothing of a will, and that Hawley himself had never referred to the matter. Several of Hawley's most intimate business associates came forward with the declaration that Hawley, a short time before his death, had spoken about the matter frequently.

Will Never Executed.

It developed that Hawley had made a will in 1902, but that it had never been executed. Hawley's anxiety over the disposition of his great fortune was due chiefly to the fact that it was his ambition to perpetuate his railroad schemes. Hawley had practically decided to incorporate his entire estate when he was seized with the illness that ended his eventful career.

It wasn't until the very hour that Hawley died that his illness was considered fatal. That he was in danger of death had apparently never been seriously contemplated by himself. He had just contemplated a magnificent winter home at Hot Springs, Va.

Frederick Crandell, the nephew, was found working as a clerk in a stevedore's office on the west side. When informed of his good fortune he disappeared. It was said at the time he had been in consultation with lawyers representing the interests of the heirs.

Fred Crandell's marriage to a former Western Union telegraph operator brought forth the information that the marriage had not turned out to be all roses and sunshine. Mrs. Fred Crandell, who had become the mother of five children, was serving a short term in the workhouse when Hawley died. She was liberated a few days after the funeral. Her children have been cared for by relatives in Chatham.

Fred Crandell in an interview just before his disappearance made the Later it was learned that she was residing in the Hawley town house at No. 19 East Sixth Street. Miss "Cameron" was interviewed, but refused to say anything except that she would be represented by John R. Neither Mr. Stanchfield nor Mr. Crandell would say a word.

ARMY HAS BEGUN MARCH ON PEKING

General Sheng-Yun Hopes to Restore Emperor to His Throne.

ANARCHY IS EVERYWHERE

Little Chance of Order Being Brought About Within Two Years.

Hongkong, March 14.—Four gunboats have been dispatched to Canton from Hongkong. An eyewitness describes the scenes at Canton as terrible. One thousand persons have been killed. The British gunboat Kinshu has been damaged by shells and has been compelled to shift her anchorage.

Peking, March 13.—General Sheng-Yun, who under the empire held the post of Governor of the province of Shensi, is marching at the head of 10,000 troops from the province of Kansu to Peking to restore the Emperor to the throne. The commander of the Emperor's guards at the palace received a message to this effect today.

In view of the seriousness of the situation caused by General Sheng-Yun's movement, President Yuan Shih Kai has sent envoys to meet him and explain the present situation.

It would seem that there is no government force, present or prospective, capable of terminating the prevalent anarchy. There is little hope among the legations that the coalition government will be successful in ending the muthous pillaging which is now sweeping over the north. One minister said today that it must burn itself out like a prairie fire. It is the general belief that order cannot be restored within two years. This breaking up of the country by secessions is considered not merely a military matter.

There are now not less than six hostile armies in the field. These comprise the northern and southern armies, which the present disorders show are not aggressive to the forced compromise; the Manchurian troops, which represent a distinct body, apart from the others; the Mongols, who in large bands are fighting the Chinese garrisons in the north; General Sheng-Yun's army, composed largely of Mohammedans, and in the province of Yunnan an army of independents.

General Sheng-Yun's exact position is not known, but according to a missionary letter recently received from Sian Fu, his followers are decimating populations and wiping out whole districts. Similar reports from Yunnan state that the independent army is in control of a part of three provinces and that up to the present it has confined itself largely to looting.

The diplomatic representatives in Peking are pessimistic because of the apparent feebleness of the Chinese administrators and disciplinarians.

Three Dead in Wreck.
Albuquerque, N. M., March 13.—Three are dead, five missing and a score more injured as a result of a rear-end collision this afternoon between a westbound extra freight and a work train on the Santa Fe Coast Line at McCarty's, N. M., sixty miles west of here. The five laborers who are missing are believed to be buried in the wreckage.

The wreck occurred on a sharp curve in a blinding snow storm, which obscured the view of the engineer of the extra freight train. The work train was standing on the main line. The dead and injured, numbering twenty, were brought here tonight.

LAWYER SCORES "THIRD DEGREE"

Denounces Methods Used by Postal Inspectors in Huffman Case.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lynchburg, Va., March 13.—John L. Lee in making his opening statement this afternoon to the jury in the case of George E. Huffman, the railway postal clerk, charged with the theft of a registered package containing $20,000 in transit from Kansas City, Va., to the Grand National Bank of Philadelphia, which disappeared from the mails here on the night of October 2, last, made a bitter attack on the "third degree" methods of the postal inspectors with reference especially to their alleged treatment of the young wife of the accused.

Mr. Lee charged that a short time after the arrest of Huffman, and while he was incarcerated here, three inspectors went to Mrs. Huffman, who was stopping with her mother at her home in Washington, and told her that her husband had confessed, and that he declared she had the money.

SOUTHERN FAST TRAIN IS WRECKED

Spartanburg, S. C., March 13.—The Southern Railway's fast train No. 30, known as the "Birmingham Special," was wrecked at Drayton Mill village, two miles east of this city, shortly after 10 o'clock tonight.

The four cars just back of the engine, led by the engine, without the tender, remained on the track.

No one was killed. S. S. Money, of Plover Branch, Ga., baggage master, sustained a cut on the right leg and other minor injuries. He was caught beneath the baggage in his car and was gotten out with difficulty. Others slightly injured were:

G. K. Huff, of Atlanta, mail agent.
W. R. Hunt, of Westminster, S. C., mail agent.

G. W. Ackers, of Atlanta, mail agent.
The wreck was caused by the front truck of the baggage car splitting a switch where the siding going into the mill village leaves the main line. This car pulled the mail car, immediately in front of it, and the tender from the engine off the rails and caused the coach and Pullman to be hurled thirty feet from the track. The rails and ties are torn out of the roadbed for 20 yards.

A story to the effect that one of the mail agents on the train showed to the conductor, while the train was standing at the station here a few minutes before the wreck, a letter he had received warning him that a meeting would not reach Charlotte without meeting with an accident, is current at the scene of the wreck.
